CAROLINA ARCHITECTURE

And Allied Arts

A PICTORIAL REVIEW OF CAROLINA'S REPRESENTATIVE ARCHITECTURE

1942

EDITION

$1.00 per Copy

FOREWORD

The architectural examples illustrated in this volume are creations of the contributors, registered architects of North Carolina and South Carolina. They have been carefully selected to show the modern trend and design best suited to this picturesque section of the South.

Appreciation is extended for the co-operation of those contractors, sub-contractors, materialmen and artisans, whose skill, energy, service or material had a part in the construction of these buildings.

It is our hope that the following pages may inspire the continued growth and development of the Carolinas in the present emergency and through the years following.

 Paint — Pritchard Paint & Glass Co.
 Paperhanging — Albert B. Herman

The Artisans' Shop designed and constructed the carved stair rail in the building as well as finished the wood paneling. The stair rail consisted of solid black walnut pickets, two pickets to each tread, each pair representing a period in cabinet making and wood-carving. The hand rail was made up of white pine with a cap of black walnut running the entire length.

We ARE NOT ARCHITECTS - - - but we are proud to cooperate in publishing this review of Carolina's finest work.

The very fundamental of this company is cooperation: and all Architects and property owners are invited to discuss their building and preservation plans with us.

CLAY PRODUCTS ★ Beautiful ★ Strong ★ Everlasting

The ruins of this old church, now known as "Sheldon" is located in the Carolina low country near Beaufort, S. C. It was constructed between 1745 and 1755 as Prince William's Parish. It was burned by the British army in 1779 and rebuilt around the same walls in 1826. It was again burned by the Federal army in 1865 and was rebuilt. This church stands as a living monument to the durability and beauty of clay products.
